HISTORY OF SCHOOL

One hundred and ten years ago a school system was established in Jackson Township. A modest one room school was erected near the Salamonie river at Sugar Grove. A suitable marker, erected in 1932, perpetuates the memory of this first school in the minds of the citizens of Jackson Township. From that modest beginning the educational system has grown through the years to the present modern consolidated school.

In 1936 the Federal Government offered to assist the township to obtain a new school building. This offer was in line with the governmental policy of creating new wealth and at the same time assisting those people who were victims of the depression. The new building was erected at a cost of $125,600. The government through its agency, The Works Progress Administration, furnished $98,000 for its share of the cost. Therefore, the cost of Jackson Township was only $27,600. The township sold bonds amounting to $20,500. The remainder of the $27,600 was obtained by razing the one room school buildings and using the material in the new building.

The State Board of Education issued a continuous commission to the new school immediately. Ordinarily a new school is in operation for some time before a continuous commission can be obtained. The first year of school in the new building began in 1937.

Prophecy.

Here it is 1961, ten years since the 1951 Seniors left dear old Jackson High. We board our magic carpet and take a cruise around the country to see what our beloved Seniors have accomplished.

As we travel west from Jackson we pass over Lee's. We see John Gilbert's car setting there as usual. It seems Kate has kept John waiting these past ten years while she has taken her nurse's training. Traveling farther west we cross Iowa and just coming into view we see a large farm home with many other buildings around. We learn from our guide, who is from India, that this is where Peggy Shultz and her old flame, Norman Schweikhardt, have settled down, Norman is a large rancher here; he has to be to support their six kids. Let us head on west to California. Here we see Frank Minnich's name in lights all over Hollywood. Frank is the most famous theatrical agent in this part of the country. Here in Hollywood, we also find that Etta Moorman has been given an Oscar for her outstanding performance in that great movie "Baby Sitting Blues". We travel south across the border of Mexico and find Richard Stroup taking a Seista in front of his hacienda. He must like the girls in Mexico, seems this is his fifth. As we travel across Texas into Oklahoma we find Eugene Banter working in one of his oil fields. We hear he owns half of the oil wells here. We continue on to Florida where we find Donna Anderson and Joan Myers. It seems that about nine years ago these two girls followed two Warren boys down here. None of them have ever made it back to Indiana. Bob Leas is in Florida also. He is running one of the world famous Yacht Clubs and a fisherman's resort. Let us continue our journey on to New York City. We see Patricia Kierstead in a rowboat with a Marine. After ten years she arrived at the Statue of Liberty, but she seems to have the Marine well occupied. We arrive at West Point. Here we find Cadet Wilber (Bus) Slusher. He is learning how to be a gentleman!!! I hope. We travel across New York State toward the Great Lakes. Much to our surprise we find Jack Banter and his wife, Mary Jane, at Niagra Falls. Jack makes an annual trip over the falls in a barrel to make money to support his family. This will be his fourth annual debut. We travel across the Great Lakes into Battlecreek, Michigan and here we find Barbara Beavans labeling PEP boxes. She met one of the Smith (Tony) boys. She got her job because Tony is the General Manager of the company. Ah! Here we are back in good old Indiana and we travel to Purdue University where we find Ruth Slusher. She is one of the yell leaders for the Boilermakers' Football Team. Jack Schmidt is the star quarter back on the varsity team. Ruthie has been at Purdue for ten years and has degrees in every subject Purdue teaches except Animal Husbandry. She plans to take that next year.

This ends our tour to find the accomplishments of these Seniors of "51". Their accomplishments have been great in the past years and we are sure they will accomplish even greater things in the next 100 years. If they live that long that will be the greatest feat of the ages.

Features

JOKES

Bob L. to mother: "What's the use of washing my hands before going to school? I'm not one of those who's always raising them."

Eugene B. "Just think. The Spaniards went 3000 miles on a gal-leon."

Peggy S. "Aw, you can't believe all you read about those foreign cars."

Barbara B. "I'm never going to marry a man that snores."
Mother "All right. But just be careful how you find out."

Joe H. "Now what is steam?"
Junior C. "Water that's crazy with the heat."

Jack B. "Some bandits robbed the bank and got away in your car."
Bus S. "Well, maybe they can afford to run it."

Donna A. "And why do you say I'm a poor judge of human nature?"
Bevington "Because you have such a good opinion of yourself."

Mr. Gibboney went to a dentist to have his tooth extracted. The dentist gave him mustard gas. "Why did you give me mustard gas?" Gibboney asked. "I figured that mustard always goes with ham." replied the dentist.

Hannah "Don't you know better than to point an empty rifle at me?"
Bob W. "But it isn't empty sir."

Richard S. "Your son just threw a stone at me."
Hannah "Hit you?"
Richard S. "No."
Hannah "Then it wasn't my son."

It's easy to meet expenses these days. You run into them everywhere you go.

Jim Blinn took his car to a garage for repairs. "Would you think this was a second hand car?" he proudly asked the mechanic. "No." replied the mechanic. "I thought you made it yourself."

Mrs. Huber was shouting at her husband trying to awaken him. "Joe, get up. I hear a mouse squeaking."
Joe "You hear a mouse squeaking? What do you want me to do? Get up and oil it?"

Mr. Hodson "When anything goes wrong around the house I always fix it."
Mrs. Hodson "Oh, sure! Since you fixed the clock, the cuckoo backs out and asks, What time is it?"

Doctor to Patient "I have good news for you Mrs. Lee."
Kate Lee "I'm Miss Lee."
Doctor "I have bad news for you Miss Lee."

Miss Garrett "Why are you late?"
Pat K. "Class began before I got here."

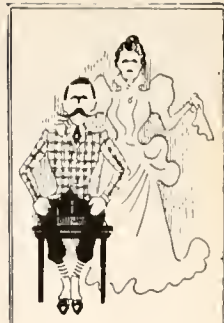

Joan "What is your idea of a clean sport?"
Ruthie S. "Swimming."

"Now Etta, Why don't you give your sister half your apple?"
"Well I gave her the seeds. She can plant them and have a whole orchard."

Miss Garrett "Didn't I tell you to notice when the soup boiled over?"
Nellie B. "I did. It was just past 10."

Frank M. "I'm indebted to you for all I know."
Mr. Hodson "Don't mention it, it's only a trifle."
